(会話文)

Junko: Tony, what's this?

Tony: It's a photograph of my family. I took it in Ueno Zoo when they came from the United States to Japan last year.

Junko: That's nice. Oh, this is a panda. Do you like pandas?

Tony: Yes. I like them very much, because they look very cute when they eat bamboo. But my sister doesn't like them. She likes lions.

Junko: Oh, really? I like pandas better than lions.

Tony: I agree with you. Well, what animal do you like the best, Junko?

Junko: Do you want to know? I'll show you a photograph. Here you are.

Tony: Oh, it's a koala! You are holding it!

Junko: That's right. I like koalas the best. This photograph was taken when I went to Australia to study.

Tony: It's very cute. I want to see a koala, too.

Junko: OK. The zoo in my city has koalas. Do you want to see them?

Tony: Of course. But I don't know where the zoo is. Can you come with me?

Junko: Sure. I'll take you there. How about this Saturday?

Tony: Well, I'll go shopping with my host family in the morning. Are you free in the afternoon?

Junko: No problem. Then, let's meet at one o'clock in the afternoon in front of the station. We are going to take a train and we will get to the zoo at two o'clock.

Tony: OK. I want to learn more about koalas now. I'll go to the library after school today to borrow some books about them.
